

LORD JOHN FISHER DIES FOLLOWING AN OPERATION

Father of Dreadnought and Known as the "Kitchenier of the Navy."

(By Associated Press.)
LONDON, July 10.—Admiral John Arbuthnot Fisher, first baron of Kilbuck, and former first Lord of the Admiralty, died this morning.
Lord Fisher underwent a serious operation yesterday and failed to rally.
Lord Fisher began his naval career in 1854, and as first Lord of the Admiralty in directing the naval warfare against Germany, his vigorous policy caused him to be termed "the Kitchenier of the British navy," and chief credit has been claimed for him in the bottling up of the German navy. Cabinet dispute led to his resignation in May, 1915, but he continued to serve the British government in various capacities throughout the war, and was a prominent naval officer.

Lord Fisher was for many years a popular idol in Great Britain, enjoying the affection and confidence of every rank of the people. He was known as the "father of the Dread-nought" because he was the first to realize the vast power of this type of warship. During his term as first Sea Lord of the Admiralty from 1894 to 1910, he virtually revolutionized the British navy.

During the great war he advocated clean sweep of old ships, as well as obsolete ships, earned him the name of "Scrap-iron Lord Fisher." Admiral Fisher had been ill for some time. He underwent a surgical operation Friday evening, which was the direct cause of death. He recovered no anesthetic and was conscious to the end.

A memorial service will be held in Westminster Abbey Tuesday.

SCOTLAND YARD TO HELP SOLVE ELWELL MYSTERY

Woman Now in England Is to Be Questioned as to Possible Crime Motive.

(By Associated Press.)
NEW YORK, July 10.—Scotland Yard was called upon today to aid in solving the mysterious murder here of Joseph Elwell, known as the "Elwell" or "Don Juan" of the city.
After having followed many feminine trails, apparently without success, the authorities have turned to another woman of Elwell's acquaintance.
Her name was not made public, but it was said she had met Elwell at Palm Beach and Miami last winter.
Two reports were current concerning her. One that she was a stam-pant beauty, another that she had served as a nurse during the war and had been decorated by a foreign government.
She is said to have told a friend that Elwell was sending her to England, intending to follow later. Her picture was found among the dead man's effects, and the authorities have expressed a desire to question her concerning any knowledge she may have of a motive for the crime.
The District Attorney's office today began examining the bank accounts of several women numbered among Elwell's friends.
